

Corporate Social Responsibility Audit

A Corporate Social Responsibility Audit is intended to assess business performance beyond financial success against generally accepted criteria on areas such as policies & responsibilities, environmental impact, health & safety, sustainable development, stakeholder engagement and community issues. Our second annual audit, conducted by specialists Corporate Citizenship, is now complete.

In recent years there has been greater stakeholder interest in how a company makes its money as well as on how much. Consequently, many businesses wish to be perceived as 'socially responsible' to demonstrate a degree of community engagement, an objective GM Procure has written into its aims.

A successful Corporate Social Responsibility Audit will validate the objectives of GM Procure as being not only an efficient and dynamic organisation but also a socially responsible one. Our social responsibility agenda, which is integrated into our general operational practices, is a central feature of our success. We are guided by people-centred decisions so it is right that we should be judged against these criteria.

The audit will help underline our social responsibility aims, clarify our principles and vision, and ensure the continued relevance of our operational objectives.
